The above figures are for the year ending July 1, 1924.

It will be noticed that at the beginning of the year $2,500 had already been used to finish out the previous year. This made it necessary for us to borrow from the 1924 appropriation in order to finish out this year. The amount borrowed, however, was $500 less than that borrowed during the previous year. A note of $500 was paid just before the books were closed which should have been paid a few days later, thus bringing it into the account of the next year. Of course this note will not have to be paid again, so we have really reduced the above deficit about $1,000 during this school year. It will be remembered that a special appropriation of $1,500 was made last March to take care of this deficit so that there should be no need of borrowing ahead in the future. From present indications, our expenditures during the present school year (1924-25) will be approximately the same as we estimated last March, and the money raised at that time will be sufficient to pay all bills.

The following applies to the present school year (1924-25). The total number of pupils registered at the beginning of the year was 534. I think that I am correct in saying that this is the largest number ever registered at the beginning of any year. The attendance thus far has, in spite of the extremely cold weather of December and January, been unusually good. We have had no serious interruptions from epidemics during the past year. This reflects credit upon the excellent work which our nurse, Miss Wheeler, is doing in our schools.

During the past few months we have been trying, by the use of scientific tests, to find out as definitely as possible the mental ability and the scholastic attainment of each individual pupil. As would be expected, we have some very bright children and some who do not come up to the standard. On the whole the mental ability of our pupils is about average. On the other hand, the scholastic attainment of our pupils as a whole is above the standard. This speaks very well for our school system and for our teaching force.

At the elementary school, Mrs. Merriam and her corps of teachers are making special effort to give to each individual pupil just the kind of work that he needs most. If a pupil is found to be backward in any special subject, he is given special drill in that subject. Pupils who have already reached the standard in certain subjects are excused from further drill in those subjects and given advanced work of some other nature. Special groups are made up, regardless of grades, for special drill in arithmetic, spelling, reading, etc. Other pupils who are already beyond grade in reading and spelling, are being given special advanced work in literature. In other words, each individual pupil is being given the kind of work and the amount of work which he needs most. Since we have a special teacher for this kind of work, we are able to do this without upsetting our regular program.

While most of our elementary teachers are young, they are all well trained and exceedingly conscientious in their work. I cannot speak too highly of the wonderful spirit of co-operation and professional advancement found at this building. They are not merely conducting recitations, but are studying their problems and, what is more important, they seem to be solving them. During the fall months a special study of the best methods of teaching reading was made. The results have been especially gratifying. I wish that all parents could visit our schools and observe the reading as it is being conducted at the present time. During the last few months the teachers of the elementary building have been directing special attention to best methods of teaching arithmetic. Mrs. Merriam seems to be especially successful in keeping her teachers working at full capacity and yet happy in their work.

To have a supervising principal and a helping teacher in a school of the size of ours is unusual, yet, I believe that we are getting unusually high interest returns on the extra money expended.

At the high school good work is also being done. At the suggestion of the State Department of Education, we are spending a little time in the high school reviewing elementary school subjects. It is claimed, and it is doubtless true, that our high school graduates have been deficient in the use of the fundamentals. Hence we are giving special drill in arithmetic, reading, spelling, writing and geography in the high school.

Several standard tests have been given at the high school during the past few months. The results of these tests indicate that the work being done compares very favorably with that being done in city schools throughout the United States.

Our Manual Training classes have had an unusual opportunity during the past few months for doing practical work. In the fall the boys made 10 typewriter tables to be used in the typewriter room. Several other tables and several book cases have also been made. At the elementary school they constructed a partition in the basement, thus making a lunch room for the girls. When bleachers were needed for the new gymnasium, Mr. Russell set his group of boys at work upon them and in less than a week they were completed. At the present time the boys are laying a floor in the basement which is to be used for a manual training room. While these jobs do not show finished workmanship, I think that all will agree that they represent good pieces of work for a group of boys. Such work gives the boys practice, which is far more valuable to them than the old idea of spending their time making pin trays and other useless articles. Not only have our boys gotten valuable experience on this work, but the saving through the town in having the boys do this work has been quite an item during the past year.

In selecting teachers this year we selected normal graduates to look after the Junior high school and college graduates for the Senior high school pupils. This seems to be giving more satisfactory results than the plan of having college graduates work with seventh and eighth grade pupils as was done last year. While several of our teachers are new in their positions, they are well trained and very much interested in their work. The school has reached the point where another teacher should be employed another year. The program of every teacher is now so full that very little individual help can be given. At the elementary building we are employing a supervising principal who devotes her whole time to supervision and teacher training. I have already said that I believe this to be an unusually good investment. At the high school building the Headmaster teaches 17 periods per week. This, together with his office work, allows very little time for teacher training. In my opinion it would be a paying proposition to employ another teacher next year so that the Headmaster may be relieved of a part of his class room teaching and that teachers would have more time to help individual pupils who especially need it.

Our rural schools (at Northumberland and at South Groveton) are going along smoothly. While these schools are small, compared with those in the village, they are no less important. Good work is being done in these schools.

The greatest achievement of this year is the erection of the addition to the high school building. This addition is 90 by 46 feet and contains ten class rooms and an assembly hall. The first floor is being used for Grade 7, the Domestic Science Department and the girl's toilet. On the second floor Grade 8 and the Commercial Department are being taken care of. The Domestic Science and Commercial Departments each have two good sized rooms, well lighted and especially adapted to their needs. The seventh and eighth grade rooms, located on the front end of the building are arranged for taking care of a class, of 50 pupils. By changing the girls' toilet from the basement of the main building to a smaller room in the addition, we are able to use the basement room formerly occupied by the toilet, for the Manual Training Department. Three rooms in the addition have been left unfinished. It does not look now as though these rooms will be needed for some time but, when more room is needed it can be obtained at a comparatively low cost by finishing these rooms. All who have seen the arrangement of this addition seem to be especially pleased with it.

The part, however, which pupils, teachers and many others seem to appreciate most is the basement, which contains the combination assembly room and gymnasium. The floor space of the main hall is about 62 by 44 feet, being large enough to make an excellent hall for playing basket ball and seat about 300 spectators. Besides this main hall we have an excellent stage and two dressing rooms fitted with shower baths.

This assembly hall supplies a need which has long been felt by the school. We are now able to conduct our indoor sports, to hold assemblies, to give plays, and to hold other social functions in our own hall.

Thus far the advantages which come from the use of this addition seem to surpass our fondest hopes. We now have an equipment, so far as buildings are concerned, of which every citizen of the town may well be proud. A great deal of praise is due the committee for their efforts in the construction of this building. Especially are we indebted to M. F. Fogarty for the excellent plan which he made and the thorough and systematic way in which he has supervised the construction. It surely will not be out of place here to say that the committee were especially fortunate in awarding the contract for this building to Robert Snodgrass of Berlin. Although his profit must have been small, Mr. Snodgrass has, according to the judgment of building critics, put up a building which in stability and workmanship meets the highest standards.

It is impossible at this time to render a complete financial report of this construction as the bills are not all settled. We hope to be able to make such a report at the regular school meeting.

The budget for the coming year will also be presented at the school meeting. No new projects are planned for next year, but in a few cases our running expenses will be a little higher than during this year. Our debt and interest account must necessarily be higher since payments must be made on the high school addition. The fuel expense will also be a little higher. Insurance is another item which will be greater. The amount of insurance carried upon our school property has until recently remained at the prewar figure, while the replacement cost has doubled. It seemed wise to the committee, therefore, at the time policies were being written for the addition to the high school building, to increase the amount on other school property. By placing insurance in the amount of 80 per cent of the value of the buildings they obtained a lower rate than had formerly been paid.

Respectfully submitted,

E. S. FOSTER,
Supt. of Schools.
